INTRODUCTION

On December 17, 2009, plaintiff Sepehr Torabi ("Plaintiff") filed a complaint against defendants Washington Mutual Bank ("Washington Mutual"); JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. (erroneously sued as Chase Bank, N.A. and hereinafter referred to as "Chase Bank"); Citibank, N.A. as trustee for WAMU 2004-AR9; and WAMU 2004-AR9. (Dkt. No. 1.) Plaintiff alleges the following causes of action: (1) violations of the Truth in Lending Act, (2) violations of the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, (3) violations of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, (4) to set aside and vacate a trustee sale, (5) unjust enrichment, (6) promissory estoppel, (7) an accounting, (8) breach of implied warranties in violation of the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act, (9) disgorgement pursuant to the California Unfair Competition Law, (10) fraud in violation of the California Unfair Competition Law, (11) an additional claim of fraud in violation of the 1 California Unfair Competition Law, (12) negligence, and (13) declaratory relief. (Dkt.

2 No. 1.)

3 Chase Bank filed a motion to dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint pursuant to Federal 4 Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) on February 1, 2010, along with requests for judicial 5 notice. (Dkt. No. 3.) Plaintiff filed an opposition to Chase Bank's Motion on December 6 9, 2010, including requests for judicial notice, and seeking leave to amend in the 7 alternative. (Dkt. No. 15.) Chase Bank filed a reply on December 20, 2010 (Dkt. No.
8 16).

9 After a careful review of the parties' submissions, and for the following reasons, this 10 Court GRANTS Defendant's Motion, GRANTS Chase Bank's requests for judicial notice, 11 DENIES Plaintiff's requests for judicial notice, and GRANTS IN PART and DENIES 12 IN PART Plaintiff's request for leave to amend.

13 FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

14 In May 2003, Plaintiff obtained financing to purchase a condominium in San 15 Diego, California. (Dkt. No. ¶¶ 8, 18-19.) In March 2004, Plaintiff began the process to 16 refinance his condominium, and, on March 30, 2004, Plaintiff learned via a commitment 17 letter that Washington Mutual would fund Plaintiff's refinance loan. (Id. ¶ 21.)

18 "The loan Plaintiff obtained from Washington Mutual was defined as an 19 'Adjustable Rate Mortgage' loan," for which the first monthly payment of $1,289.06 20 would be due on July 1, 2004. (Id. ¶ 29.) Under the loan terms, Plaintiff's monthly 21 payment would remain the same for a total of sixty months, after which Plaintiff's 22 principal and interest payment would adjust upward for a higher principal and interest 23 payment. (Id. ¶ 30.) Thereafter, Plaintiff's principal and interest payment would re-24 adjust annually for the life of the loan. (Id.)

28 ///

1 Plaintiff alleges that, at some time following his refinance, Washington Mutual was 2 placed in receivership and that, as a result of Washington Mutual being placed in 3 receivership, Chase Bank was able to acquire certain Washington Mutual assets, including 4 Plaintiff's refinance loan.¹ (Dkt. No. 1 at 2.)

5 In or about August 2008, Plaintiff began to fall behind on his monthly loan 6 payments, and by May 1, 2009, Plaintiff was $12,000.00 in arrears. (Id. ¶ 31.) Plaintiff 7 alleges he explained his economic hardship to a business associate and that the business 8 associate volunteered to loan Plaintiff up to $20,000.00 to cure his delinquency. (Id. ¶ 9 32.)

10 In or about May 2009, Plaintiff received a "Notice of Default" and a "Notice of 11 Trustee Sale," which named a reconveyance company as trustee, Plaintiff as trustor, and 12 Washington Mutual as beneficiary. (Id. ¶ 33.) Around the same time, Plaintiff also 13 received correspondence from Chase Bank/Washington Mutual stating: "As your mortgage 14 company, we're ready to do whatever we can to help our Chase and WaMu customers 15 through these challenging economic times," coupled with an instruction to call the La 16 Mesa Chase Home Ownership Center where a loan advisor would work with Plaintiff to 17 explore all options available, including government programs designed to keep Plaintiff in 18 his home. (Id. ¶ 34.)

19 Thereafter, Plaintiff alleges he began working with a Chase Bank/Washington 20 Mutual loan advisor. (Id. ¶ 37.) The loan advisor asked Plaintiff to complete an 21 application, to submit a hardship letter, and to provide information detailing his financial 22 position. (Id.) After Plaintiff submitted those items, the loan advisor informed Plaintiff 23 that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual "would stop the foreclosure process while they 24 qualified Plaintiff for a modified payment plan." (Id. ¶ 38.) Plaintiff specifically informed 25 the loan advisor that, if the loan modification process did not work, he had a business 26

27 ¹ Following Plaintiff's allegation that Chase Bank acquired Washington Mutual's 28 assets, Plaintiff makes no distinction between the two entities. As such, the Court will set forth Plaintiff's factual allegations as alleged by Plaintiff. The distinction between these two entities, however, is important as will be discussed below.

1 associate willing to loan him sufficient funds to cure the default. (Id. ¶ 39.) Plaintiff 2 alleges the loan advisor responded by stating that, given the relatively small amount of 3 Plaintiff's delinquency ($12,000.00), obtaining a modified payment plan "would be easy."
4 (Id. ¶ 40.) Based on the loan advisor's response, Plaintiff advised his business associate 5 "he would not need to borrow the funds [the business associate] had agreed to loan 6 [Plaintiff] as [Chase Bank/Washington Mutual] had agreed to modified [sic] the terms of 7 the mortgage and had also halted both the foreclosure proceeding and trustee sale." (Id.
8 ¶ 41.)

9 On or about June 16, 2009, Plaintiff received a loan modification contract from 10 Chase Bank/Washington Mutual, indicating Plaintiff's new monthly payment would be 11 $1,853.70 – "a 50% increase" from Plaintiff's prior monthly payment of $1,289.06. (Id.
12 ¶¶ 42-43.) Plaintiff, however, alleges the contract was generic in that it did not contain:
13 (1) specifics as to the modified loan terms, (2) an amortization schedule, (3) details 14 regarding how title to the property would be recorded, or (4) an explanation of how the 15 increased monthly payment "was going to help Plaintiff . . . through these 'tough 16 economic times.'" (Id. ¶ 42.) Moreover, Plaintiff alleges he received the modification 17 contract on June 17, 2009, and was instructed to sign and return it no later than June 19, 18 2009. (Id. ¶ 44.) Plaintiff communicated his concerns regarding the modification 19 contract's lack of specificity and the two-day deadline to Chase Bank/Washington Mutual 20 representatives. (Id. ¶¶ 44-45.) In response, Chase Bank/Washington Mutual agreed to 21 extend Plaintiff's deadline "to the end of July." (Id. ¶ 47.)

22 On July 10, 2009, the loan advisor working with Plaintiff informed Plaintiff that 23 Chase Bank/Washington Mutual would be sending Plaintiff a new financial evaluation 24 package and that Plaintiff's loan would be "kept in the active negotiation phase and 25 therefore [Chase Bank/Washington Mutual] would not pursue foreclosure until they 26 determine [Plaintiff's] options." (Id. ¶ 53.)

27 Thereafter, Plaintiff alleges he engaged the help of another business associate to 28 help him through the loan modification process and to act as a third-party advocate. (Id.

¶ 48.) Plaintiff alleges that this business associate spoke with a Chase Bank/Washington Mutual representative on July 15, 2009, who informed the business associate that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual was reviewing the loan modification paperwork that Plaintiff had previously submitted. (Id. ¶¶ 49-50.) The business associate then spoke with various Chase Bank/Washington Mutual representatives on July 20, 2009, who confirmed Chase Bank/Washington Mutual was not pursuing foreclosure on Plaintiff's property and that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual had no plans to sale Plaintiff's property at that time. (Id. ¶ 52.)

On July 22, 2009, a Chase Bank/Washington Mutual representative informed Plaintiff that, "according to the banks [sic] own conversation log, and progress log, [Chase Bank/Washington Mutual] had sent Plaintiff a request for additional documentation on July 22, 2009." (Id. ¶ 54.) Chase Bank/Washington Mutual's "home retention department" further informed Plaintiff that the deadline to return the loan modification documents would be extended to July 30, 2009, because Chase Bank/Washington Mutual had not yet addressed Plaintiff's concerns regarding the documents. (Id. ¶ 56.)

By July 30, 2009, Chase Bank/Washington Mutual still had not addressed Plaintiff's concerns, so Plaintiff contacted Chase Bank/Washington Mutual to discuss the matter further. (Id. ¶ 56.) At that time, Plaintiff learned that, on July 23, 2009, his property had been sold at a trustee sale and that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual was the purchaser. (Id. ¶ 57.)

Following sale of his property, Plaintiff obtained a forensic review of the loan documents he executed in connection with his 2004 refinance loan, whereby he learned the loan documents "contained numerous violations of the federal 'Truth in Lending Laws, the Federal Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act as well as Inflated Notary Charges in violation of California Law.'" [Id. ¶ 67 (typographical errors in original).] "The same forensic company additionally told Plaintiff that they were concerned Washington Mutual's appraisal of his home was artificially high." (Id. ¶ 68.)

Indeed, Plaintiff alleges he has discovered multiple violations of the Truth in

1 Lending Act, the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, including: (1) undisclosed 2 settlement charges, (2) unjust enrichment, (3) a miscalculated annual percentage rate, (4) 3 inflated notary charges, (5) conflicts between disclosures and official documents, (6) an 4 improperly completed estimated settlement statement, (7) an inflated appraisal, (8) failure 5 to apply an application fee, (9) various miscalculations, (10) failure to provide Plaintiff
6 with a Consumer Handbook on Adjustable Rate Mortgages (“CHARM”) Booklet, (11) no
7 good faith estimate, and (12) failure to comply with underwriting standards. (Id. ¶ 74.)

8 Plaintiff claims Washington Mutual defrauded him at the time he acquired his 9 refinance loan by offering him a loan that put him “on a track to foreclosure from day 10 one.” (Id. ¶ 13.) Plaintiff claims Washington Mutual perpetrated this “mortgage fraud” 11 by “issuing fraudulent property appraisals” and by “routinely violat[ing] RESPA, TILA, 12 together with inflating Notary [sic] costs by 900%.” (Id.) As to notary costs, Plaintiff 13 alleges Washington Mutual “charged Plaintiff 100.00 for his signature” in violation of 14 California Government Code section 8211. (Id. ¶¶ 13-14.) Plaintiff alleges that “through 15 their continuing fraud and failure to reverse these charges, and continuing to amortize 16 these illegal costs into each loan payment, [Chase Bank/Washington Mutual] tolled the 17 statute of limitations.” (Id. ¶ 15.)

18 Plaintiff alleges Chase Bank/Washington Mutual further defrauded Plaintiff by 19 claiming to send Plaintiff a revised mortgage modification package, then selling Plaintiff’s 20 home to themselves (i.e., Chase Bank/Washington Mutual) at a trustee sale one day later.
21 (Id. ¶ 11.) Plaintiff alleges that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual’s loan modification 22 program was a “ruse designed to [ci]rcumvent California [law] . . . and to lead Plaintiff .
23 . . to early default and foreclosure.” Plaintiff alleges Chase Bank/Washington Mutual 24 intended to mislead Plaintiff so that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual could “steal” his 25 property, as evidenced by the fact that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual paid 26 $393,000.00 for the property when it was worth an estimated $500,000.00 and by the 27 fact that Chase Bank/Washington Mutual knew Plaintiff’s property carried approximately 28 $100,000.00 in equity. (Id. ¶¶ 61-63.)

1 Plaintiff claims that, as a result of Chase Bank/Washington Mutual's conduct, 2 Plaintiff has been damaged in the loss of his home and costs associated with bringing this 3 action. (Id. ¶ 71.)

4 REQUESTS FOR JUDICIAL NOTICE

5 The Court will discuss the parties' requests for judicial notice before considering 6 Chase Bank's Motion to Dismiss to define the scope of information the Court will 7 consider in deciding Chase Bank's Motion.

8 Generally, "a district court may not consider any material beyond the pleadings in 9 ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion." Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 688 (9th 10 Cir. 2001) (citation omitted). "When matters outside the pleadings are presented to and 11 not excluded by the court, the motion shall be treated as one for summary judgment and 12 disposed of as provided in Rule 56. . . ." Id. (citation omitted). A court, however, may 13 look to facts proper for judicial notice without converting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to one 14 for summary judgment even though those facts are beyond the complaint. See Mack v.
 15 S. Bay Beer Distrib., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir.1986), abrogated in part on other 16 grounds by Astoria Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Solimino, 501 U.S. 104 (1991).

17 Federal Rule of Evidence 201 allows a court to take judicial notice of an 18 adjudicative fact "not subject to reasonable dispute in that it is . . . capable of accurate and 19 ready determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot be reasonably 20 questioned." "Adjudicative facts are those to which the law is applied in the process of 21 adjudication. They are the facts that normally go to the jury in a jury case." Grason Elec.
 22 Co. v. Sacramento Mun. Util. Dist., 571 F. Supp. 1504, 1521 (E.D. Cal. 1983) (citation 23 omitted).

24 I. Chase Bank's Requests for Judicial Notice

25 In connection with its Motion to Dismiss, Chase Bank filed a Request for Judicial 26 Notice, asking the Court to notice facts contained in two documents that Chase Bank 27 asserts are facts capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources whose 28 accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned. (Dkt. No. 3-2 at 2.) The first document is an

1 order issued by the Office of Thrift Supervision appointing the Federal Deposit Insurance
 2 Corporation (“FDIC”) as receiver of Washington Mutual Bank, dated September 25, 2008
 3 (“OTS Order”). (Id.) The second document is a “Purchase and Assumption Agreement 4 . . . among Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Receiver of Washington Mutual Bank, 5 . . . Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and JPMorgan Chase Bank, National 6 Association, Dated as of September 25, 2008” (“Purchase and Assumption Agreement”).
 7 (Id.)

8 As set forth in its motion, Chase Bank requests that the Court take notice of the 9 fact that the Office of Thrift Supervision placed Washington Mutual into receivership on 10 September 25, 2008, appointing the FDIC as receiver, as provided in the OTS Order.
 11 (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 2.) Chase Bank further requests that the Court take notice of the fact 12 that, when Chase Bank acquired certain Washington Mutual assets and liabilities from 13 the FDIC (acting as receiver of Washington Mutual) on September 25, 2008, Chase Bank 14 did not assume Washington Mutual’s potential liabilities associated with borrowers’ 15 claims, as provided in the Purchase and Assumption Agreement.² (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 3-4.)

16 Plaintiff makes no objection to Defendant’s request that this Court notice those 17 two facts.

18 Both facts are capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources 19 whose accuracy cannot be reasonably questioned. The first fact – that Washington

20 21 ² The Purchase and Assumption Agreement provides:

22 2.5 Borrower Claims. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this 23 Agreement, any liability associated with borrower claims for payment of or 24 liability to any borrower for monetary relief, or that provide for any other 25 form of relief to any borrower, whether or not such liability is reduced to 26 judgment, liquidated or unliquidated, fixed or contingent, matured or 27 unmatured, disputed or undisputed, legal or equitable, judicial or 28 extra-judicial, secured or unsecured, whether asserted affirmatively or defensively, related in any way to any loan or commitment to lend made by the Failed Bank [i.e., Washington Mutual] prior to failure, or to any loan made by a third party in connection with a loan which is or was held by the Failed Bank, or otherwise arising in connection with the Failed Bank’s lending or loan purchase activities are specifically not assumed by the Assuming Bank [i.e., Chase Bank].

(Dkt. No. 3-2 at 21.)

1 Mutual was placed into receivership – is set forth in the OTS Order, which was issued by 2 the Office of Thrift Supervision, now the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, an 3 office within the Department of Treasury. The OTS Order is available at 2008 WL 4 4559947 (Sept. 25, 2008). The second fact – that Chase Bank did not acquire certain 5 Washington Mutual liabilities – is set forth in the Purchase and Assumption Agreement, 6 which was entered into by the FDIC, acting as receiver of Washington Mutual, and Chase 7 Bank. It is available on the FDIC government website.³ Moreover, this fact is also set 8 forth in a First Circuit decision (Yeomalakis v. Fed. Deposit Ins. Corp., 562 F.3d 56, 60 9 (1st Cir. 2009) as discussed below. Accordingly, Chase Bank’s requests for judicial notice 10 are GRANTED.

11 II. Plaintiff’s Requests for Judicial Notice

12 _____ In support of his opposition to Chase Bank’s Motion to Dismiss, Plaintiff requests 13 that this Court take judicial notice of facts in various news articles related to Chase Bank 14 and foreclosures. (Dkt. No. 15 at 5.) Specifically, Plaintiff asks the Court to notice the 15 fact contained in a December 2010 Washington Post article that a Chase Bank employee 16 stated she and her team “signed off on about 18,000 foreclosures per month without 17 checking if they were justified.” (Id.) Plaintiff also asks the Court to notice the fact that 18 industry analysts have declared the “defects” seen in Chase Bank foreclosure documents 19 to be industry-wide, as contained in a November 2010 Washington Post article and a 20 December 2010 Chicago Business Wire article. (Id.)

21 In reply, Chase Bank objects to Plaintiff’s request for judicial notice because the 22 facts Plaintiff requests that this Court notice are “facts that go to the heart of the dispute 23 regarding the purported wrongdoing by [Chase Bank].” (Dkt. No. 16 at 3.)

24 The facts that Plaintiff asks the Court to notice are not appropriate for judicial 25 notice. As to the fact that a Chase Bank employee stated she and her team “signed off on 26 about 18,000 foreclosures per month without checking if they were justified,” Plaintiff has 27

28 ³ www.fdic.gov/about/freedom/Washington_Mutual_P_and_A.pdf

1 not provided information showing that fact to be capable of accurate and ready 2 determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned. A 3 news article is not necessarily, and for judicial notice, such a source. Further, even if the 4 Court noticed that the employee made such a statement, the truth of that statement is 5 subject to reasonable dispute. Plaintiff has not provided information showing the fact that 6 industry analysts have declared the defects seen in the Chase Bank foreclosure documents 7 to be industry wide to be capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources 8 whose accuracy cannot be reasonably questioned. Moreover, the conclusions of industry 9 analysts (i.e., the truth of their assertions) are subject to reasonable dispute. Accordingly, 10 Plaintiff's requests for judicial notice are DENIED.

11 DISCUSSION

12 I. Legal Standards

13 A motion to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) tests the 14 sufficiency of the complaint. Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001).
15 Dismissal is warranted under Rule 12(b)(6) where the complaint lacks a cognizable legal 16 theory. Robertson v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 749 F.2d 530, 534 (9th Cir. 1984); see 17 Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 326 (1989) ("Rule 12(b)(6) authorizes a court to 18 dismiss a claim on the basis of a dispositive issue of law."). Alternatively, a complaint may 19 be dismissed where it presents a cognizable legal theory yet fails to plead essential facts 20 under that theory. Robertson, 749 F.2d at 534. While a plaintiff need not give "detailed 21 factual allegations," he must plead sufficient facts that, if true, "raise a right to relief above 22 the speculative level." Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 1965 (2007).

23 In reviewing a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), the court must assume the 24 truth of all factual allegations and must construe all inferences from them in the light most 25 favorable to the nonmoving party. Thompson v. Davis, 295 F.3d 890, 895 (9th Cir.
26 2002); Cahill v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 80 F.3d 336, 337-38 (9th Cir. 1996). Legal 27 conclusions, however, need not be taken as true merely because they are cast in the form 28 of factual allegations. Ileto v. Glock, Inc., 349 F.3d 1191, 1200 (9th Cir. 2003); Western

1 Mining Council v. Watt, 643 F.2d 618, 624 (9th Cir. 1981). “Nor does a complaint 2 suffice if it tenders ‘naked assertion[s]’ devoid of ‘further factual enhancement.’” Ashcroft 3 v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009).

4 The Ninth Circuit has held that a district court may properly grant a motion to 5 dismiss as unopposed pursuant to a local rule where the local rule permits, but does not 6 require the granting of a motion for failure to respond. See generally Ghazali v. Moran, 7 46 F.3d 52, 53 (9th Cir. 1995) (per curiam) (affirming dismissal for failure to timely file 8 opposition to papers). Civil Local Rule 7.1(f.3.c) expressly provides that “[i]f an opposing 9 party fails to file the papers in the manner required by Local Rule 7.1(e.2), that failure 10 may constitute a consent to the granting of that motion or other request for ruling by the 11 court.”

12 II. Analysis

13 A. Scope of Chase Bank’s Liability

14 Chase Bank asserts it is not liable for actions undertaken by Washington Mutual 15 as those actions relate to Plaintiff’s loan because Chase Bank expressly disclaimed such 16 liability when it acquired certain Washington Mutual assets and liabilities from the FDIC 17 acting as receiver of Washington Mutual. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 3-4.)

18 Chase Bank also points to a First Circuit case in which the court addressed the issue 19 of Chase Bank’s liability for Washington Mutual’s pre-acquisition actions as they 20 pertained to borrowers’ claims under the same Purchase and Assumption Agreement 21 offered by Chase Bank here. In that case, the First Circuit stated:

22 When Washington Mutual failed, Chase Bank acquired many assets but its 23 agreement with the FDIC retains for the FDIC “any liability associated with 24 borrower claims for payment of or any liability to any borrower for monetary relief, or that provide for any other form of relief to any borrower.”[] Thus the FDIC was and remains the appropriate party in interest.

25 Yeomalakis v. Fed. Deposit Ins. Corp., 562 F.3d 56, 60 (1st Cir. 2009).

26 This Court agrees with the First Circuit’s analysis. Because the FDIC was 27 appointed as receiver of Washington Mutual on September 25, 2008, and because – when 28 Chase Bank acquired certain Washington Mutual assets and liabilities from the FDIC on

1 September 25, 2008 – it expressly disclaimed liability related to Washington Mutual’s 2 actions as they relate to borrowers’ claims, the FDIC retains liability for Plaintiff’s claims 3 to the extent they arose before September 25, 2008. Thus, to the extent Plaintiff makes 4 claims against Chase Bank for Washington Mutual’s conduct prior to September 25, 5 2008, Plaintiff fails to state a claim against Chase Bank.

6 B. Plaintiff’s First Cause of Action for Violation of the Truth in Lending 7 Act

8 Plaintiff alleges Washington Mutual and Chase Bank violated provisions of the 9 Truth in Lending Act (“TILA”), 15 U.S.C. § 1601, and Regulation Z, 12 C.F.R. § 226.23.
10 (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 76.) Plaintiff claims he has a “continuing right to rescind” his refinance 11 loan because Washington Mutual failed to comply with 12 C.F.R. § 226.23. (Id. ¶ 77.)
12 “[I]n addition to rescission,” Plaintiff claims “the Court may award relief under section 13 1640 of this title for violations [of] this sub-chapter not relating to the right to rescind,” 14 namely “statutory damages for the disclosure violations” and “[a]ttorneys fees, litigation 15 expenses and costs.” (Id. at 21.)

16 In its Motion to Dismiss, Chase Bank asserts the applicable statute of limitations 17 bars Plaintiff’s claims for rescission and for civil penalties. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 12.)

18 In response, and at apparent odds with his Complaint, Plaintiff asserts he “is not 19 seeking rescission for TILA . . . violations.” (Dkt. No. 15 at 9.) Plaintiff further asserts 20 that the doctrine of equitable tolling should apply to his claim for damages, as Plaintiff 21 had no way of knowing what, if any, violations had occurred until 2009 when he received 22 the results of the forensic review of his 2004 loan documents. (Id.)

23 In reply, Chase Bank asserts that any TILA violation must have occurred when 24 Plaintiff’s loan originated in 2004, which is before Chase Bank acquired an interest in 25 Plaintiff’s loan pursuant to the Purchase and Assumption Agreement. (Dkt. No. 16 at 4.) 26 Thus, Chase Bank argues it cannot be held liable for any violation of TILA as a matter of 27 law. (Id.) Chase Bank again argues that, in any event, the statute of limitations bars 28 Plaintiff’s claims for both damages and rescission. (Id.) Chase Bank does not, however,

1 address Plaintiff's contention that equitable tolling should apply to overcome the statute 2 of limitations applicable to Plaintiff's claim for damages.

3 TILA provides protection for consumers engaged in credit transactions by requiring 4 "meaningful disclosure of credit terms." 15 U.S.C. § 1601(a); Eby v. Reb Realty, Inc., 495 5 F.2d 646 (9th Cir. 1974) (TILA "is a remedial statute designed as much as possible to 6 permit borrowers to make informed judgments about the use of credit."). Thus, any 7 violation necessarily occurs at the time a consumer seeks and/or obtains credit because the 8 fundamental purpose of the statute "is to provide information to facilitate comparative 9 credit shopping." Brown v. Marquette Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 686 F.2d 608, 612 (7th Cir.
10 1982). Indeed, the limitations period applicable to TILA actions for damages, 15 U.S.C.
11 § 1640(e), runs from the date a covered loan transaction is consummated. King v.
12 California, 784 F.2d 910, 915 (9th Cir. 1986). "[T]he doctrine of equitable toling may, 13 in appropriate circumstances, suspend the limitations period until the borrower discovers 14 or had reasonable opportunity to discovery the fraud or nondisclosures that form the basis 15 of the TILA action." (Id.)

16 Here, because any violation of TILA must have occurred when Plaintiff's refinance 17 loan was consummated in 2004, and because Chase Bank did not assume liability for 18 borrowers' claims arising from Washington Mutual's actions undertaken before September 19 25, 2008, Chase Bank is not liable for any violation of TILA as it relates to Plaintiff's 20 refinance loan. Thus, it is unnecessary at this time for the Court to address whether 21 Plaintiff has pled facts sufficient to equitably toll the statue of limitations applicable to 22 his claim for damages. Accordingly, as alleged against Chase Bank, Plaintiff's First Cause 23 of Action is DISMISSED WITHOUT LEAVE TO AMEND.

24 C. Plaintiff's Second Cause of Action for Unfair Debt Collection Practices

25 Plaintiff avers "that the Defendants, and each of them, in taking the actions 26 aforementioned, have violated provisions of the Federal Fair Debt Collections Act 27 ["FDCPA"]. . . and the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act" (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 79.)

28 In its Motion, Chase Bank asserts the act of foreclosure is not considered "debt

1 collection” as defined by the FDCPA. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 5.)

2 In opposition, Plaintiff asserts foreclosure is “debt collection” because a recording 3 that plays when calling Chase Bank/Washington Mutual’s loan modification department 4 states Chase Bank/Washington Mutual is “attempting to collect a debt.” (Dkt. No. 15 at 5 9.)

6 In reply, Chase Bank reasserts that foreclosure is not considered “debt collection” 7 because payment of funds is not the object of a foreclosure action.⁴ (Dkt. No. 16 at 4-5.)

8 The FDCPA sets forth various requirements and prohibitions for the purpose of, 9 among other things, eliminating abusive debt collection practices by “debt collectors.” 15 10 U.S.C. § 1692(e). The FDCPA provides:

11 The term “debt collector” means any person who uses any instrumentality 12 of interstate commerce or the mails in any business the principal purpose of 13 which is the collection of any debts, or who regularly collects or attempts to collect, directly or indirectly, debts owed or due or asserted to be owed or due another.

14 Id. § 1692a(6) (emphasis added).

15 Foreclosure is “a legal proceeding to terminate a mortgagor’s interest in property, 16 instituted by the lender (the mortgagee) either to gain title or to force a sale in order to 17 satisfy the unpaid debt secured by the property.” Black’s Law Dictionary (9th ed. 2009) 18 (emphasis added). Thus, because “foreclosure” is a proceeding to satisfy an unpaid debt, 19 it appears the act of foreclosure falls within the FDCPA only if the mortgagee (i.e., the 20 lender) can be considered a “debt collector” as defined by the FDCPA.

21 The Court has not found a Ninth Circuit case that addresses the question of 22 whether mortgagees are debt collectors. Section 1692a(6), however, makes clear that a 23 “debt collector” is one who collects a debt on behalf of another. Because foreclosure is 24 instituted by the mortgagee to recover a debt owed to itself, a mortgagee instituting

25
26
27 ⁴ As a preliminary matter, neither party addresses Plaintiff’s allegation that unfair 28 debt collection practices constitute a violation of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (“RESPA”). The Court, however, notes that RESPA does not provide a cause of action for unfair debt collection practices. See generally 12 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.; see also 24 C.F.R. § 3500.1 et seq.

foreclosure cannot be considered a “debt collector” under the FDCPA. See Diessner v. Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, 618 F. Supp. 2d 1184, 1188–89 (D. Ariz. 2009) (concluding that, based on the available legal authority and the legislative history, a mortgagee is not a debt collector as defined in the FDCPA). Further, other district courts in the Ninth Circuit have also addressed this question, holding that the act of foreclosure is not debt collection under the FDCPA. See Odinma v. Aurora Loan Serv., 2010 WL 2232169, at *11 (N.D. Cal. June 3, 2010); Jozinovich v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A., 2010 WL 234895, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 14, 2010); Mansour v. Cal-Western Reconveyance Corp., 619 F. Supp. 2d 1178, 1182 (D. Ariz. 2009); Gallegos v. Recontrust Co., 2009 WL 215406, at *3 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 29, 2009); Castro v. Executive Trustee Services, LLC, 2009 WL 438683, at *6 (D. Ariz. Feb. 23, 2009); Hulse v. Ocwen Fed. Bank, 195 F. Supp. 2d 1188, 1204 (D. Or. 2002). The Court finds the rationale in these cases persuasive.

Because Plaintiff alleges a violation of the FDCPA in connection with the foreclosure of his property, Plaintiff has failed to state a claim for violation of the FDCPA. Accordingly, as alleged against Chase Bank, Plaintiff’s Second Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITHOUT LEAVE TO AMEND.

D. Plaintiff’s Third Cause of Action for Violation of RESPA

Plaintiff alleges Washington Mutual “gave to, and/or accepted a fee, kickback, or thing of value pursuant to an agreement or understanding that business incident to or a part of a real estate settlement service involving federally related mortgage loans would be referred to a person in violation of” the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (“RESPA”). (Dkt. No. 1 at 22.)

Chase Bank argues Plaintiff’s Third Cause of Action should be dismissed because it is barred by the applicable statute of limitations requiring the type of claim asserted by Plaintiff for violation of RESPA to be brought within one year of the violation. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 14.)

Plaintiff asserts in opposition that equitable tolling should apply to overcome the 1 applicable statute of limitations. (Dkt. No. 15 at 9.)

2 In reply, Chase Bank argues that Plaintiff has failed to set forth factual allegations 3 sufficient for the Court to consider Plaintiff's assertion that the applicable statute of 4 limitations should be tolled. (Dkt. No. 16 at 6.) Moreover, Chase Bank asserts that, in 5 any event, it is not liable for any alleged wrongdoing that occurred at the time Plaintiff's 6 loan originated. (Id.)

7 In relevant part, RESPA "requires mortgage lenders to disclose the costs associated 8 with real estate closings," "prohibits fee-splitting in connection with settlement services 9 except for services actually performed," and "prohibits giving or accepting anything of 10 value in exchange for referrals except in certain circumstances." Bloom v. Martin, 77 F.3d 11 318, 320 (9th Cir. 1996) (citing 12 U.S.C. §§ 2601, 2602, 2603, 2607). Any RESPA 12 violation of these types must occur at the time the loan closes.

13 Here, because the type of RESPA violation alleged by Plaintiff must have occurred 14 when Plaintiff's refinance loan closed in 2004, and because Chase Bank did not assume 15 liability for borrowers' claims arising from Washington Mutual's actions undertaken 16 before September 25, 2008, Chase Bank cannot be liable for violating RESPA as it 17 pertains to Plaintiff's refinance loan. Thus, it is unnecessary at this time for the Court to 18 address whether Plaintiff has pled facts sufficient to state a claim under RESPA or, if he 19 has, whether Plaintiff has alleged facts showing he is entitled to equitable tolling of the 20 applicable statute of limitations. Accordingly, as alleged against Chase Bank, Plaintiff's 21 Third Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITHOUT LEAVE TO AMEND.

22 E. Plaintiff's Fourth Cause of Action to Set Aside and Vacate the Trustee 23 Sale of His Property and to Cancel the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale

24 Plaintiff claims Chase Bank conducted the trustee sale of his property in violation 25 of California Civil Code section 2924 et sequens. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 84.) In conjunction with 26 this claim, Plaintiff asserts the trustee's deed upon sale should be canceled to avoid 27 irreparable injury to Plaintiff pursuant to California Civil Code section 3412. (Id. ¶ 87.)

28 In support of its Motion to Dismiss, Chase Bank asserts that Plaintiff failed to 1 allege that he “can fully and unconditionally tender the amount owing under the deed of 2 trust, or the means by which Plaintiff will accomplish such payment, as required by 3 California Law” to state a claim for cancellation under section 3412. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 8.)

4 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
5 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

6 In its Reply, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff’s Fourth Cause of Action should be 7 dismissed for failure to oppose Chase Bank’s Motion as to this claim. (Dkt. No. 16 at 8.)

8 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank’s Motion, 9 Plaintiff’s Fourth Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND.

10 F. Plaintiff’s Fifth Cause of Action for Unjust Enrichment

11 Plaintiff alleges that Washington Mutual and Chase Bank were unjustly enriched 12 by “marketing sub-prime loans via inflated property appraisal(s), charging Plaintiff and 13 countless other borrowers inflated notary and various other non-disclosed fees, and 14 through the unlawful foreclosure of Plaintiffs [sic] property” (Dkt. No. ¶ 89.)

15 Chase Bank seeks dismissal of this claim because “Plaintiff fails to set forth any 16 facts as to what fees were charged.” (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 16.) Moreover, Chase Bank asserts 17 it cannot be held liable for any amounts claimed as to actions undertaken by Washington 18 Mutual pursuant to the Purchase and Assumption Agreement. (Id.)

19 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
20 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

21 In its Reply, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff’s Fifth Cause of Action should be 22 dismissed for failure to oppose Chase Bank’s Motion as to this claim. (Dkt. No. 16 at 8.)

23 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank’s Motion, 24 Plaintiff’s Fifth Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND.

25 G. Plaintiff’s Sixth Cause of Action for Promissory Estoppel

26 Plaintiff alleges Chase Bank “promised, assured and represented to Plaintiff that the 27 foreclosure sale of his property had been suspended due to Plaintiffs [sic] participation in 28 defendants [sic] ‘Loan Modification’ Program.” (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 91.) Specifically, Plaintiff

1 alleges that Chase Bank “assured and represented to Plaintiff that the sale of the Subject 2 Property would continue to be suspended pending approval of his ‘Loan Modification.’” 3 (Id.) Plaintiff claims Chase Bank “knew, or should have known that Plaintiff would be 4 reasonably induced to rely on Defendants [sic] promise . . . to suspend the foreclosure .
5 . . and not seek alternative financial and/or legal remedies to rescue the property.” (Id. ¶ 6 92.) Plaintiff alleges he reasonably relied on Chase Bank’s promise and that, as a result 7 of Chase Bank’s failure to keep its promise, Plaintiff was “deprived of title to, as well as 8 the quiet use and enjoyment of the Subject Property.” (Id. ¶ 94.) Plaintiff alleges 9 injustice can be avoided by enforcing Chase Bank’s promise. (Id. ¶ 95.)

10 In its Motion to Dismiss, Chase Bank asserts that, while Plaintiff alleges Chase 11 Bank “promised to stop the foreclosure,” Plaintiff “gives no facts as to who made this 12 alleged statement or when it was made, or to whom it was made. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 10.)

13 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
14 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

15 In reply Chase Bank asserts Plaintiff failed to alleged that Chase Bank made a clear 16 promise to Plaintiff. (Dkt. No. 16 at 9.)

17 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank’s Motion, 18 Plaintiff’s Sixth Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND.

19 H. Plaintiff’s Seventh Cause of Action for an Accounting

20 In conjunction with his claim that the sale of his property was unlawful, Plaintiff 21 alleges Chase Bank “received proceeds from the unlawful sale, a portion of which is due 22 to Plaintiff from Defendants.” (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 97.) “The amount of money due from 23 Defendants,” alleges Plaintiff “is unknown to Plaintiff at this time and cannot be 24 ascertained without an accounting of the proceeds after [t]he sale of the Subject property.” 25 (Id. ¶ 98.) Plaintiff further alleges that he “has demanded an accounting of the 26 amortization schedule and calculated interest for the aforementioned loan modification 27 from” Chase Bank and that Chase Bank has refused to render such an accounting. (Id.
28 ¶ 99.)

1 In support of its Motion, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff is not entitled to an 2 accounting because he has failed to allege facts demonstrating that Chase Bank owed 3 Plaintiff either a fiduciary duty or a general duty of care, or that the foreclosure itself was 4 improper. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 10.)

5 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
 6 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

7 In its Reply, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff's Seventh Cause of Action should be 8 dismissed for failure to oppose Chase Bank's Motion as to this claim. (Dkt. No. 16 at 9-9 10.)

10 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank's Motion, 11 Plaintiff's Seventh Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND.

12 I. Plaintiff's Eighth Cause of Action for Breach of Implied Warranties in 13 Violation of the CLRA

14 Plaintiff alleges Chase Bank violated the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act 15 ("CLRA") in that it "carried out a scheme designed to deliberately cheat large numbers of 16 consumers out of their homes, and individually, through small to moderate sums of 17 money." (Dkt. No. 1 ¶¶ 101, 105.) Plaintiff then states generally that 18 Defendants . . . have violated the CLRA, which . . . provides . . . the 19 following unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or 20 practices undertaken by any person in a transaction intended to result or 21 which results in the sale or lease of goods or services to any consumer are 22 unlawful: . . . i) Representing that the services have characteristics or benefits 23 which they do not have; . . . ii) Advertising services with the intent not to 24 provide them as advertised.

25 (Id. ¶ 104.)

26 Chase Bank seeks dismissal of this claim, primarily arguing that foreclosure is not 27 governed by the CLRA. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 18.) Specifically, Chase Bank argues that 28 Plaintiff's refinance loan and the potential loan modification are not "goods" or "services" as defined by the CLRA. (Id.) Chase Bank further argues that, even if the CLRA applied, Plaintiff has failed to allege facts showing that Chase Bank's alleged actions are likely to deceive a reasonable consumer. (Id.) Lastly, Chase Bank asserts that Plaintiff has failed

1 to cite to any authority permitting Plaintiff to proceed with a private cause of action under 2 the CLRA. (Id.)

3 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
4 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

5 In its Reply, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff's Eighth Cause of Action should be 6 dismissed for failure to oppose Chase Bank's Motion as to this claim. (Dkt. No. 16 at 8.)

7 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank's Motion, 8 Plaintiff's Eighth Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND.

9 J. Plaintiff's Ninth and Eleventh Causes of Action for Violations of 10 California's UCL

11 In his Ninth Cause of Action, Plaintiff alleges Washington Mutual and Chase Bank 12 violated California's Unfair Competition Law, California Business and Professions Code 13 section 17200 et sequens ("UCL"), in that they "have a pattern and practice of defrauding 14 borrowers through the personal misuse of their real property assets." (Dkt. No. ¶ 107.)
15 Specifically, Plaintiff avers that Washington Mutual and Chase Bank "have absconded 16 with ill gotten gains, defrauding not only Plaintiff but similarly situated homeowners, by 17 perfecting foreclosure on residential properties without any legal authority whatsoever to 18 do so." (Id. ¶ 108). These practices, alleges Plaintiff, are "unfair, unlawful, immoral, 19 unethical, and in violation of the law." (Id. ¶ 110.) As such, "Plaintiff prays for the full 20 disgorgement of monies and profits and the value of converted assets according to proof" 21 and "an injunction order enjoining and restraining Defendants . . . from engaging in or 22 performing any act to deprive Plaintiff of ownership or possession of their real property
23" (Id. ¶¶ 111-112.)

24 In his Eleventh Cause of Action, Plaintiff claims Chase Bank engaged in unfair and 25 deceptive acts, "as it is an unfair practice to misrepresent to Plaintiff . . . in detrimental 26 reliance to enter into its 'Loan Modification' program, and to thereafter misrepresent to 27 consumers including Plaintiff, that the foreclosure of their home(s) had been stayed when 28 the true facts are that they were proceeding with foreclosure nonetheless." (Id. ¶ 123.)

1 Chase Bank seeks dismissal of these claims, arguing Plaintiff lacks standing to bring 2 an action for violation of the UCL because Plaintiff failed to allege facts demonstrating 3 he “suffered an injury in fact, or even that he lost any money or property as a result” of 4 Chase Bank’s alleged conduct. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 12.)

5 As to Plaintiff’s Eleventh Cause of Action, Chase Bank asserts Plaintiff failed to 6 allege facts sufficient to state a claim for the common law tort of fraud, in that Plaintiff 7 failed to “state with the requisite specificity the ‘times, dates, places, benefits received, and 8 other details of the alleged fraudulent activity.’” (Id. at 14.) Chase Bank also argues that 9 “Plaintiff also fails to adequately allege the remaining elements [of a fraud claim], 10 including knowledge of falsity . . . that Defendants intended to induce Plaintiff into 11 relying on any representation . . . that Plaintiff relied on any representation by Defendants 12 . . . or any resulting damage.” (Id.)

13 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
14 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

15 In its Reply, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff’s Ninth Cause of Action should be 16 dismissed for the reasons stated in its Motion to Dismiss and Plaintiff’s Eleventh Cause 17 of Action should be dismissed for failure to oppose Chase Bank’s Motion as to this claim.
18 (Dkt. No. 16 at 10-11.)

19 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank’s Motion, 20 Plaintiff’s Ninth and Eleventh causes of action are DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO 21 AMEND.

22 K. Plaintiff’s Twelfth Cause of Action for Negligence

23 In his Twelfth Cause of Action, Plaintiff alleges that Washington Mutual and Chase 24 Bank “owed a duty of care to Plaintiff as Mortgage lenders and holders of Plaintiffs [sic] 25 note and Deed of Trust.” (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 129.) Plaintiff then alleges generally that 26 Washington Mutual and Chase Bank breached that duty and that their breach was a 27 direct and proximate cause of Plaintiff’s damages. (Id. ¶¶ 130-131.)

28 In its Motion to Dismiss, Chase Bank argues it owes no cognizable legal duty to 1 Plaintiff as a lender engaged in securing its interest in loan collateral and that Plaintiff 2 alleges no specific facts supporting the remaining elements of a negligence claim. (Dkt.

 3 No. 3-1 at 15.)

4 Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition but generally requests leave to amend.
 5 (Dkt. No. 15 at 12.)

6 In its Reply, Chase Bank argues Plaintiff's Twelfth Cause of Action should be 7 dismissed for failure to oppose Chase Bank's Motion as to this claim. (Dkt. No. 16 at 8.)

8 Because Plaintiff provides no argument in opposition to Chase Bank's Motion, 9 Plaintiff's Twelfth Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND.

10 L. Plaintiff's Thirteenth Cause of Action for Declaratory Relief

11 Plaintiff alleges "[a]n actual controversy has arisen and currently exists between 12 Plaintiff and Defendants" in that "Defendants herein 'blindsided' him by foreclosing on 13 his home when they expressly told him they would not do so while he was negotiating a 14 'loan modification.'" (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 134.) Plaintiff further alleges he "desires a judicial 15 determination . . . as to whether the foreclosure is valid and enforceable." (Id. ¶ 135.)

16 Citing California law, Chase Bank argues this claim should be dismissed because 17 Plaintiff does not seek a judicial determination of the parties' respective rights and 18 obligations as they relate to the future conduct of either party. (Dkt. No. 3-1 at 16.)

19 In opposition, Plaintiff cites to the federal Declaratory Judgment Act and various 20 federal cases addressing declaratory relief. Plaintiff, however, offers no argument applying 21 the law he cites to the factual allegations in his Complaint.

22 In reply, Chase Bank asserts Plaintiff's declaratory relief claim duplicates Plaintiff's 23 other causes of action alleging Chase Bank's foreclosure was improper. (Dkt. No. 16 at 24 6.)

25 "A declaratory judgment offers a means by which rights and obligations may be 26 adjudicated in cases 'brought by any interested party' involving an actual controversy that 27 has not reached a stage at which either party may seek a coercive remedy and in cases 28 where a party who could sue for coercive relief has not yet done so." Seattle Audubon

1 Soc. v. Moseley, 80 F.3d 1401, 1405 (9th Cir. 1996) (citing 28 U.S.C. § 2201). The 2 Declaratory Judgment Act “is intended to allow earlier access to federal courts in order to 3 spare potential defendants from the threat of impending litigation.” Id. (citing Skelly Oil 4 Co. v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 339 U.S. 667 (1950)).

5 “Declaratory judgment actions are justiciable if ‘there is a substantial controversy, 6 between parties having adverse legal interests, of sufficient immediacy and reality to 7 warrant the issuance of a declaratory judgment.’” Seattle Audobon Soc., 80 F.3d at 1405 8 (citing Nat’l Basketball Ass’n v. SDC Basketball Club, 815 F.2d 562, 565 (9th Cir.1987)).

9 Here, the alleged controversy has reached a stage where a party may seek coercive 10 relief. Indeed, Plaintiff asserts twelve other causes of action, alleging he is entitled to 11 coercive relief in the form of damages, rescission, and injunction. Plaintiff does not allege 12 the threat of an impending foreclosure; he alleges claims based on a completed foreclosure.
 13 In essence, Plaintiff’s claim for declaratory relief is moot. Accordingly, Plaintiff’s 14 Thirteenth Cause of Action is DISMISSED WITHOUT LEAVE TO AMEND.

15 M. Plaintiff’s Requests for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary 16 Injunction

17 At the end of his Complaint, Plaintiff
 18 applies for a Temporary Restraining Order [“TRO”] and Order to Show 19 Cause re: Preliminary Injunction enjoining Defendants . . . from spending, 20 transferring, disbursing, encumbering, or otherwise dissipating any real or 21 personal property without prior Court approval, including but not limited 22 to any money or other consideration that Defendants have received from 23 Plaintiff for any loan, refinance transaction or appraisals made with Defendants . . . and any money or other consideration Defendants have received from Plaintiff as a result of their “Loan Modification Scheme” including but not limited to money or other considerations obtained from borrowers, lenders, or other entities for the transaction.
 (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 140.)

24 Plaintiff bases his requests on the allegations in his First, Second, Third, Ninth, 25 Tenth, and Eleventh causes of action. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 140.) Plaintiff also alleges, for the 26 first time in his Complaint, that defendants have violated the Home Ownership and 27 Equity Protection Act (“HOEPA”) and the Federal Trade Commission Act (“FTCA”).
 28 (Id.)

1 Because this Court dismisses each of Plaintiff's claims as discussed above, and 2 because Plaintiff fails to allege any facts demonstrating that Chase Bank has violated 3 either HOEPA or the FTCA, Plaintiff's requests for a TRO and an "OSC Re: Preliminary 4 Injunction" are DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

5 CONCLUSION

6 After careful consideration of the parties' submissions, and for the foregoing 7 reasons, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that:

- 8 1. As alleged against Chase Bank, Plaintiff's First, Second, Third, and 9 Thirteenth causes of action are DISMISSED WITHOUT LEAVE TO 10 AMEND;
- 11 2. Plaintiff's Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh, and 12 Twelfth causes of action are DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND;
- 13 3. Plaintiff's requests for a TRO and "OSC Re: Preliminary Injunction" are 14 DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE;
- 15 4. Plaintiff may file an amended complaint no later than November 16,
